

Issue Update

Dave Pelletier, D&G Mechanical (1997) Ltd.

BCCA Welcomes New Chair

The BC Construction Association is looking forward to a year of focused activity under the leadership of its recently elected Chair, Dave Pelletier, president of D&G Mechanical (1997) Ltd. A proponent of innovative thinking, Pelletier plans on bringing fresh perspectives and a passion for the industry to his new position.

“The construction industry is a great place to build a career and I am looking forward to getting that message out over the next year, especially to the youth of our province” states Pelletier. “The BC Construction Association can take pride in the work it has done over the years, particularly in the area of developing standards for tendering procedures and increasing professionalism across the industry. Now we need to show off our industry and encourage the next generation to embrace construction as an exciting career path. We need to ensure that BC continues to have top-notch skilled workers and contractors.”

Pelletier began his construction career with Heatcraft, Division of D & G Mechanical in Kelowna after studying engineering, and taking courses on residential heating and cooling systems. He completed an apprenticeship in the sheet metal trade and holds an Interprovincial Trade Qualification as a Journeyman Sheet Metal Worker. Today, Pelletier is the President of D & G Mechanical (1997) Ltd. and acts as general manager, estimator and project manager.

In addition to his business and trade experience, Pelletier has served on the Board of Directors for the Southern Interior Construction Association for over ten years and was Chair of that organization in 1998-1999. He has served on numerous committees and councils over the years dealing with public construction issues, trade contractor concerns, and standards and practices for the industry. On the national level, Pelletier has served as a Director with the Canadian Construction Association for several years and sits on both the Standard Practices Committee and the Trade Contractor Council.

An active member of the community, Pelletier and his family reside in Kelowna, B.C.